

Maricela Rincon

Professor Montgomery

Composition 1301

24 April 2024

Reflection

During this course, I gained much knowledge in writing and proper formatting. This course has helped me find my voice as a writer, express myself and my opinions, and learn to stay informative for specific writings. One primary tool that has helped me excel in my academic writing is rhetorical analysis. I enjoyed this portion of the writing because I love to dig deep and find deeper meanings in writing, and using song lyrics reminded me of a lot of poetry. I love dissecting the message that a writer is subliminally portraying. Ethos, logos, and pathos are sometimes hard to find when reading through writing, especially if the writing is informative or persuasive. However, the tools we have been given to understand what information is helped me a lot, and I was able to grasp this topic thoroughly. I enjoyed writing about exciting topics and chose what needed to be heard. Overall, this course has helped me develop my writing and find my voice to gain a broader understanding of subjects and how to correctly explain and cite, especially sources that were useful in knowledge.